Junior Class, 33.

CANDIDATES for admission to this Department must be able to sustain a thorough examination in the following studies, viz :— English Grammar, Modern Geography, Arithmetic, mental and written, and the History of the United States.

The time devoted to the studies of the Classical Department will necessarily vary somewhat with the age, proficiency, and other circumstances of the student. Three years, however, will be regarded as the full course. It is believed that this time, in a majority of cases, is quite short enough to meet the present academical requirements, and to lay a safe and thorough foundation for future progress.

The academical year commences with the Fall Term, when the Junior Class in this department is formed. The importance of commencing the course at this time, and pursuing it regnlarly without interruption, through the several classes, cannot be too deeply felt by those who aim at thoroughness and completeness in a classical education. Haste and irregularity, in most instances, result either in entire failure, or in loose and superficial habits.

Students can be received at any period in their preparatory course, provided they are prepared to enter either of the regular classes.

CANDIDATES for admission to this Department must be able to sustain an examination in the following studies, viz:—Orthography, the first principles of English Grammar, Colburn's First Lessons, and Written Arithmetic through Vulgar Fractions.

Instruction in this Department is designed to be systematic, thorough, and complete, embracing a regular succession of studies, extending through a period of three years. It is hoped that the advantages of such an arrangement will be sufficiently obvious to all, who aim at a correct English education. Experience, it is believed, has proved that one year's uninterrupted study is of more value to the student than twice that amount at widely separated intervals, by terms and half-terms. A systematic course, therefore, is both economy to the parent and of incalculable value to the pupil. Every attention, however, will be paid to those whom necessity compels to take a shorter course.

NOTE. Course of Study, Text-Books, &c., see p. 20.

YOUNG LADIES will enjoy all the privileges of the Institution with regard to Library, Apparatus, Lectures, &c., and also the benefit of instruction in the Male Department in those studies which can be most successfully taught there. That course of instruction will be pursued which will have direct reference to that which is solid and useful, giving strength and discipline to the mind, and cultivation and direction to the moral feelings and general character.

BOARDING HOUSE, &C

About forty young ladies can be accommodated in the Boarding House, where they will enjoy special social and domestic advantages under the immediate care of their Teachers. Assisted by a general superintendent, the young ladies themselves perform the domestic labor of the house, thereby diminishing the expense of board, and in no degree retarding their progress in study. The whole expense of the house, exclusive of wood and lights, has not exceeded $1,25 per week.

Term Bills are one half required in advance. All bills, without exception, must be settled before young ladies leave at the close of the Term.

APPLICATION, &C.

Those who wish to enter the Boarding House, should make application at least four weeks before the commencement of the Term. In case of failure in any engagement, notice should seasonably be given.

Each young lady is requested to bring with her a table spoon and tea spoon, towels for her own use, and bedding for her bed. Articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the whole name. Young ladies should also be provided with suitable shoes, &c., for stormy weather.

NOTE. Those young ladies not connected with the Boarding House, and not under the immediate direction of their parents, are under the general direction of their teachers, in regard to their rooms, boarding-places, and any special rules of the school.

BENEFICIARY FOUNDATION.

From the funds of the Institution assistance is rendered to fifteen or twenty young men, annually, who have the gospel ministry in view, and are in indigent circumstances. Such have their tuition remitted and receive an appropriation of $1,00 per week during term time. Tuition is likewise remitted to such other young men as have the same object in view, and are assisted by other benevolent societies.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

The regulations of the school require every student to attend public worship on the Sabbath, at such place as parents and guardians may designate, and when no such designation is made, at the place where the teachers usually attend. They are also required to attend the stated morning and evening devotions in the chapel, and a Biblical exercise on the Sabbath, under the direction of the teachers.

The great object which the Instructors design to keep continually in view, will be to develope the intellectual and moral character—to discipline and call into action the mental faculties—while at the same time they inculcate the great principles of morality and religion. The guardians of the Institution wish it to be distinctly remembered, that no young person whose habits and influence are of an immoral tendency will be permitted to remain in the school; as considerations of an individual nature must always be sacrificed for the general good.

EXAMINATIONS, &c.

There are public examinations of all the classes in the several Departments, at the close of the Fall and Spring Terms, before the Trustees, or a Committee, chosen at their direction. Parents, guardians, and all others interested, are respectfully invited to attend.

On the evening of the day of the Annual Meeting, there is an exhibition in Elocution by the First Class. At this Meeting, likewise, Essays in English and Latin Composition are exhibited by the same class.

TEACHERS' CLASS.

There will be familiar Lectures given on methods of teaching, the management and government of schools, and the responsibility of the Teacher's office.
